DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Saruta US Patent 6035526. Saruta teaches a device for repair a liquid crystal display comprising an applicator (figure 23A element 92) for being precisely positioned on the defective area, and a tank for containing the opaque material (figure 14 element 94), wherein the applicator applies the opaque material on the defective TFT substrate of the liquid crystal display (figure 12G).

Regarding claims 2 and 3, the reference teaches a needle with a flat top for being in contact with the defective area (see figure 23A element 92).

Regarding claim 4, the reference teaches the needle applying the opaque material on the defective area by getting in contact with the defective area (see figure 12C and 12G and figure 13 steps 5 and 7)

Regarding claim 5, the reference teaches a method for repairing a liquid crystal device, comprising the steps of: providing an applicator with an opaque material positioning the applicator on the defective area, and moving the applicator for getting in contact with the defective area such that the opaque material is applied on the defective area (see column 8 lines 7-27).

Regarding claim 6 the reference teaches a tank provided (figure 14 element 94), and a step of immersing the needle in opaque material (see figure 16).

Regarding claims 7 and 8, the reference discloses an applicator that is a needle with a flat top for contacting the defective area (figure 23A element 92).

Regarding claim 9, the reference teaches an array test for identifying defect areas (see figure 13 step 1).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 10-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Saruta 6035526.

Saruta does not disclose a LCD comprising a TFT, having a plurality of scan lines, a plurality of data lines, a plurality of pixel electrodes, and a plurality of TFTs individually electrically connected to scan lines, the data lines and data electrodes and pixel electrodes however these limitations are well-known in the art. Additionally Chaudet et. al US Patent 5771082 discloses an LCD having all of these features (see figure 8). However Saruta does disclose an LCD with a defective area, and opaque material applied on the defective area of the TFT substrate (see figure 12G).

Regarding claims 11- 12, the reference does show the opaque material formed hardened light-curing and formed as a dark dot(see figure 12G).

Regarding claim 13, the reference does explicitly state the material has high adhesion to prevent peeling, however the reference does show ink, which can be considered highly adhesive.

Regarding claim 14, the primary reference does show an array test (figure 12A).

Regarding claim 15, the reference shows an external applicator (see 23A element 92).

Additionally regarding claims 11-15 these claims are product by process claims. The MPEP states:

2113 [R-1] Product-by-Process Claims

PRODUCT-BY-PROCESS CLAIMS ARE NOT LIMITED TO THE MANIPULATIONS OF THE RECITED STEPS, ONLY THE STRUCTURE
IMPLIED BY THE STEPS

Claims 11-15 do not show any additional structure therefore are the limitations are considered obvious over the reference.
